BUDGET CUTS CAUSED BY ENROLLMENT DROP

The second round of "cutbacks" to the current 1972-73 University operating budget are scheduled this month, reducing the University's financial condition to a critical state. Financial reserves have been reduced to near zero as the University begins budget reductions unprecedented in recent history.

The latest reductions have been caused by drastic and unexpected enrollment drops at both the Athens and regional campuses. About $1.5 million in fee income is lost to the University this year as a result of the decrease on the Athens campus of 1,363 students, and a decrease on regional campuses of 435. The present main campus enrollment is 17,443, down about 7.2 percent, while the regional campuses are down 8.5 percent from the anticipated level of 5,138.

Previous adjustments for this year, announced September 22, amounted to $1.1 million, leaving a total impact of $2.6 million on the already tight University budget. All departments, from those teaching classes to purely administrative units, will begin immediately reducing their level of activity.

The financial crisis could be compounded by at least $1.2 million more, should the Ohio Board of Regents decide to base state subsidy on actual enrollment instead of this year's projected figure of 18,800 for the Athens campus. A decision on the subsidies is expected by December.

Should the State refuse to grant support sufficient to meet the budgeted level, additional budget cuts will be necessary this year. Some tension was

Director of Development*

"This year as we approach alumni and friends for support we do so in an entirely new and different setting. The University is in the midst of a major financial crisis. A loss of quality is inevitable. The question is, how great the loss will be?"

President Claude R. Sowle made this statement to residents of the Athens community in referring to the enrollment decline which has resulted in the financial crisis detailed elsewhere on this page.

It is not, nor will it be, the policy of the Development/Alumni Office to belabor financial needs of the University through the pages of the Alumni Journal. However, you are a part of the University and have an immediate stake in her future. Any possible loss of quality education at Ohio University should be a concern to you as an alumnus and reported to you accordingly.

Although final decisions on specifically where budget cuts will come are not available at press time. We do know that $1.9 million must be reduced from a budget which has been in effect since July 1, 1972. The $1.9 million includes a loss of $1.5 million in student fee income and approximately $400,000 in income adjustments made in September. The general reductions as recommended to the president by the 22-person Augmented Budget Committee are as follows:

Area	% Reduction from Total Budget	Total
Vice President Academics
Instructional	2%	$ 399,940
Non-instructional	4.7%	254,981
	2.6%	$ 654,921
Vice President Regional Higher Education
Instructional	2%	$ 62,650
Non-instructional	4.7%	165,984
	3.4%	$ 228,634
Vice President Administrative Services	4.7%	$ 329,647
Vice President Educational Services	4.7%	$ 97,968
Vice President and Treasurer	4.7%	$ 102,194
Vice President University Relations, President and Planning, Budgets & Information Services	4.7%	67,371
		$1,480,735
Other Reductions to Centrally Budgeted Items
		481,128
		$1,961,863

These recommendations must be approved by the president and ultimately be presented to the Board of Trustees for their final acceptance.

What can you . . . we . . . do, as alumni, to help soften the blow? As one grad remarked recently, "You can't resign from Ohio University, and you can't erase your degree from the records. Alumni status is for life and non-negotiable. So why don't all alumni do something to enjoy it?"

It would be unrealistic to assume that alumni could eliminate the current problem, but alumni help now can minimize the crisis. If you haven't responded recently, the Development/Alumni Office strongly encourages that your unrestricted support be sent directly to Ohio University via the envelope enclosed with this publication. What you contribute is less important than having you actively with Ohio University!

Budget Cuts . . .

relieved when Ohioans voted for the state income tax.

President Sowle has expressed concern that many people, even in the University community, do not realize the extent of the problem. He has personally worked with the Development Office in preparing three mailings which have gone out to recent graduates, past alumni donors, and alumni who have never contributed, urging unrestricted gifts.

The President stressed the fact that it is the unrestricted gift which is of most value to the University at this time, so that funds which come in can be put to immediate use in the area in which they are needed most.

In order to bring new views on the problem and increase representation, eight persons were added to the 14 member University Budget Committee. The committee worked intensively to consider the enrollment-caused budget difficulties and on October 27 recommended a plan to President Sowle from among several alternatives. Their proposal asked for direct reductions to centrally budgeted items of $481,000 with the balance of the problem being handled by each senior administrator's area.

Following the plan, "instructional" areas would need to reduce their overall budgets by 2 percent, while administrative and noninstructional functions would be reduced 4.7 percent overall. President Sowle is to review the proposal and following any possible changes it will be presented to the Board of Trustees on November 13, 1972.

Undergraduate Alumni Association Formed

Say "Generation Gap" and immediately people think in terms of conflict of values between a teenager and a parent or any other adult. Alumni Associations have found that they too face a generation gap in a place where seemingly everyone would have the same goal for the University. They

The enrollment decrease at Ohio University does not appear to be unique. Preliminary figures from other state assisted institutions show a stabilizing pattern for some schools that had previously expected increases ranging from 8 to 10 percent. College officials across the nation are speculating that the tight economy, high tuition rates, poor job market, and revised Selective Service laws are contributing factors to the trend.

In an effort to discover the causes of the University's sudden drop in enrollment, the University is conducting a survey of several hundred students who chose not to return to Ohio University to complete a degree. Results from the survey should be available by mid-November.

University officials are anticipating the information gathered from the survey will provide some reasons for the decline in enrollment. An intensified recruitment program will begin soon in an attempt to provide the student body for which the campus facilities and programs are designed and to prevent erosion of the academic disciplines which have been established in the University's recent period of rapid growth.

must now contend with the younger alumnus whose values and emphases differ from that of the older alumnus.

Our own Alumni Association has attempted to bridge this gap by developing a program that will encourage students still on campus to take an interest not only in the future of the University but also in the Alumni organizations. The end product has been the Undergraduate Alumni Association (UAA). Jeff Brickman, president of the UAA explained that the purpose of the service organization is to "preserve and promote loyalty and fellowship among students, faculty, administration, Athens residents, and Alumni of Ohio University. . . To develop programs to stimulate a sincere and devoted interest in Ohio University and to encourage participation in activities to enhance the public image of campus life."

Success for the UAA depends upon its ability to contact and interest the incoming freshmen, particularly since communication problems have plagued the UAA in reaching the upperclass students on campus about their program. With continued development of the incoming University population, the Undergraduate Alumni Association can go a long way towards bridging the gap between the older Alumni and the recent graduate.

Where do you live? . . . Number 12

No, that's not a code; it's just a student saying that he lives on the South Green in building no. 12.

Knowing that you've won half the battle. Now, try finding no. 12 if you don't know the numbering system. This problem leaves students perplexed let alone anyone unfamiliar with the changing campus. The Board of Trustees recently put an end to the problem by announcing the names for the South Green dormitories, the Messenger building, the mathematics building, the new Albany airport, and two new buildings on the Lancaster and Zanesville campuses.

The new airport was named to honor the late Gordon K. Bush, former publisher of the Athens Messenger and an Ohio University trustee from 1931 to 1961. Bush was a licensed pilot and a leader in the 1933 establishment of the former airport on East State Street. He served as president of Athens Airways, Inc., which managed the airport until 1942, when it was purchased by Ohio University.

The mathematics building was named for Dr. Robert Morton, recipient of the University's Founder's Citation, Ohio University Distinguished Professor Emeritus of Education and faculty member for 42 years. Dr. Morton, the author of nine books and a co-author of junior high and elementary school mathematics texts which in different editions represent 180 books, has endowed two professorships at Ohio University. His gifts to the University total nearly $1 million.

When the Athens Messenger building is remodeled for occupancy by the School of Journalism, it will take the name of George Starr Lasher. Lasher came to Ohio University in 1924 as head of the Journalism Department and, when the department was made a school in 1936, became its first director. He retired in 1956 and died in 1964.

Branch buildings to be built at the Lancaster and Zanesville campuses will bear the names of brothers.

Russell P. Herrold, for whom the Zanesville building will be named, served on the Board of Trustees, was a director of the Ohio University Fund, and headed the Sesquicentennial Scholarship Drive in Zanesville. Active in civic affairs prior to his death in 1970, he was a vice president of Anchor-Hocking Glass Corporation in Zanesville.

William Gordon Herrold, for whom the Lancaster building will be named, was also an Ohio University alumnus and an Anchor-Hocking at Lancaster vice president. He served on the Alumni Association Board of Directors and was chairman of the Citizen's Advisory Committee to Ohio University-Lancaster. He died in 1968.

Individuals important in Ohio University and state history for whom South Green buildings will be named are:

Adolph Armbruster, dean of the College of Commerce from 1936 to 1950

A.A. Atkinson, an alumnus, faculty member and first dean of the College of Applied Sciences

John Brough, former governor of Ohio and Ohio University Trustee who founded the Cincinnati Enquirer

Stanley Dougan, M.D., a physician and recipient of the Distinguished Alumnus Award

Thomas Ewing, one of the first two students to receive an Ohio University degree (in 1815), and Ohio University Trustee, lawyer, and United States Senator and cabinet member

William H. Fenzel, professor for 50 years, alumni association officer for 43 years and recipient of the Outstanding Alumnus Award and Honorary Doctorate of Humane Letters

Israel M. Foster, alumnus, trustee from 1900 to 1906 and former president of the Alumni Association

Thomas N. Hoover, former professor and author of The History of Ohio University

Clement Martzolff, faculty member and first alumni secretary

Charles G. O'Bleness, alumnus, banker and noted Athens philanthropist

William Sooy Smith, alumnus, Civil War general and well-known Chicago engineer

Josiah True, one of the first six settlers of Athens and an original stockholder in the Coonskin Library

Dr. Cynthia U. Weld, first woman member of the faculty who was named professor of rhetoric and history in 1882

Dr. Edith A. Wray, former faculty member and chairwoman of the English Department.

Football Oktoberfest Role Reversal

HOMECOMING 1972

Homecoming for Alumni meant more than a football game and a cancelled concert. This year it meant INVOLVEMENT.

Involvement was role reversal where you learn what the other guy had to cope with. This could have been changing roles with a student to see if going to class or cutting class was still the same. Or you could have taught a class and seen that not all professors have it so easy up there. You could even have reversed with an administrator and found out what it takes to run a university.

Involvement didn't end here, it only began here.

Gone were the traditional parade, housedecks, and queen. In their place was OKTOBERFEST. This German festival was adapted Athens style, and booths were set up by area residents and students for food and drink, crafts, rides, and games. The carnival spirit prevailed throughout the entire weekend and helped ease the disappointment of the cancelled Ike and Tina Turner concert.

The Alumni Luncheon before the game provided three hundred Alumni with the opportunity to see old friends and to make new friends while listening to the music of the 110 Marching Men of Ohio. The Alumni Board honored the band for their school spirit as exemplified through their music during half time ceremonies.

Although the injury riddled Bobcats went down to defeat at the hands of the nation's number one quarterback, Don Strock of Virginia Tech, it didn't dampen spirits for the presentation of the new members of the Hall of Fame.

After the game there was plenty of time to tour Athens and the campus to see how they both have changed over the years. Or if you preferred, you could have spent your time at OKTOBERFEST before the banquet held that night for those Alumni who were honored by the Alumni Association with the Certificate of Merit.

Dr. Morton Named Graduate of Year

Presentation of the Outstanding Graduate of the Year Award was made to Dr. Robert Morton '13.

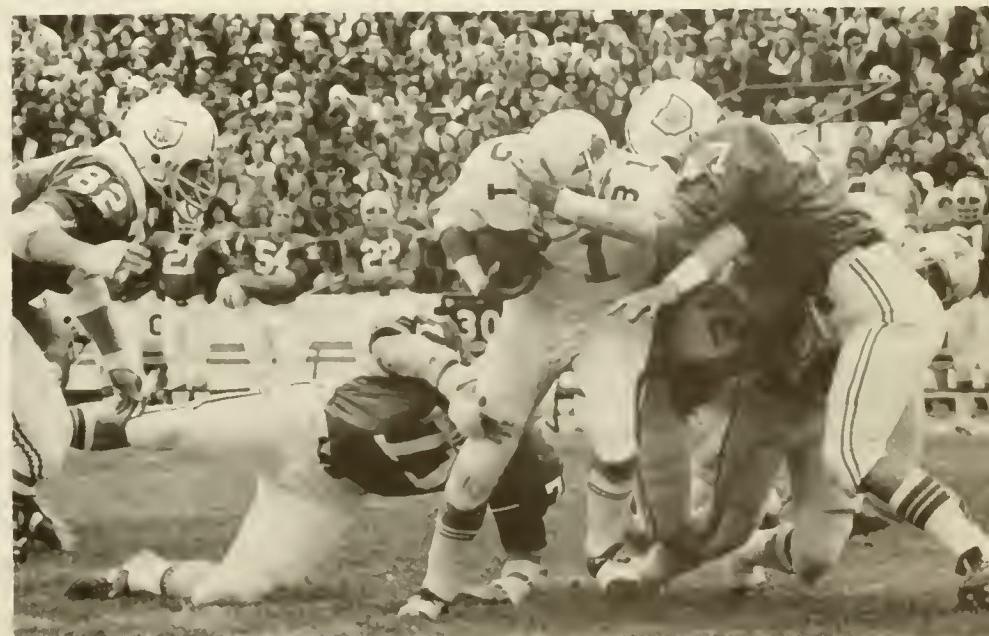

Dr. Morton retired in 1960 after teaching in the College of Education for 42 years. At that time he was named Distinguished Professor of Education. He has co-authored junior and elementary school textbooks and authored nine books with sales exceeding 50 million.

In March of last year, Dr. Morton completed an endowment of $555,000 to fund his first permanent professorship. In April, he presented the University with $366,000 in stock certificates to begin the endowment of his second permanent chair. His total financial contributions to his Alma Mater total nearly $1 million.

Dr. Morton was presented with the Founder's Citation, Ohio University's highest award, in April, and the new mathematics building has been named in honor of Dr. Morton.

You can see that Homecoming at Ohio University means involvement. And that's important because you're not a stranger to Ohio University—you're a part of what has made Ohio University great.

If you couldn't make it back to Athens for this year's Homecoming, then plan on being here next year and become involved again with Ohio University. The Journal will keep you informed of all upcoming events as well as plans for next year's Homecoming.

Letters To The Journal

Dear Fellow Alumni:

Our president, Claude Sowle, is lately back from a trip rivalling Paul Revere's. He rode fast through eight Ohio cities and towns to warn the citizenry that something worse than redcoats is on the march: politicos in Columbus are threatening to double tuition on four-year state university campuses!

To every bright high school boy and girl in Ohio this is bad news, including those whose parents are Ohio U. or other state university grads with a natural desire to send them to alma mater. In these inflationary times it's already rough enough that state campus students are paying nearly 30% of their room-and-board charges for dorms built the past 20 years — the kids paying for the dorms, not the state! With all campus expenses soaring, double tuition would be close to tragic. It would sharply limit the number who could manage to afford higher education.

What kind of men are these politicians who claim that Ohio people won't allow themselves to be taxed for such a profitable investment in its qualified young citizens? Yet it's true that Ohio, one of the wealthiest states, is one of the five stingiest. It's so rated today, and ex-Chancellor Millett, who comes up with a tuition plan more miserly even than Governor Gilligan's, blames it on the taxpayers. I think he slanders them.

Nobody dances with joy when taxes fall due, nor other insurance payments. They're tough, especially on retired people, no matter how hardworking, thrifty and fortunate they've been. Taxes that provide "fair price" higher education are easiest for everybody; many helping a little each, as with insurance. Ohio has been over-bonded and under-taxed for years, so it's under-served by niggardly treatment of state hospitals, prisons and universities.

My father, a missionary, moved to Athens so his three sons could go to college. That education made us successful enough to pay back the cost to the state many times over in taxes; likewise true of our daughter and her husband, Ohio school teachers. Now both generations tighten belts to put four grandchildren through the same university, a pretty good investment for Ohio, in just one sample family.

Please join me in helping President Sowle defend us all from this "most unkindest cut of all." I urge you to write posthaste to the Columbus legislators from your county, asking them, for everybody's sake, to take the action that will make Ohio respectable among other states in what it invests in higher education for its people.

Urgently yours,
CARR LIGGETT
Class of 1916
Cleveland, Ohio

(Editor's note: In spite of all the emphasis on new methods and techniques in education, some of the problems never change. The following excerpts are from the Ohio Alumnus of 1932-33. The problems pointed out by the editor for that year are problems which still face us in 1972. Education is as expensive as it is important, and concern over a limping budget and possible loss of funds has long been a major problem of both the University and its Alumni Association. These problems continue to plague us and seem to be a firmly entrenched aspect of our future unless a change in priority and attitude is forthcoming.)

Let there be taken, if necessary, a holiday in building of expensive highways. All of us enjoy the smooth, arrow-like roads of today and, when they can be afforded, we are for them; but super highways are luxuries. Individuals in the ordering of their private affairs in the past three years have gradually eliminated the luxuries from their budgets and have restricted themselves more and more to necessities. The country club membership, the expensive vacation, and the new car have been ruled out in favor of more essential items. So it should be with the state in its budgeting. We believe it would be possible to rumble, with at least some degree of happiness, past groups of well taught, well-developed children, but also there would be little satisfaction, however smooth the highway, in passing abandoned school houses. If there must be a moratorium let it be on road building — not on education, never.

If education in our colleges and universities suffers during the next five years, it means that whole generation of capable young men and women will have been denied opportunities to prepare themselves for "the understanding and solution of the complicated problems of personal, national and international life."

Will the fidelity of these schools and institutions be rewarded by a fair and sympathetic consideration of their needs, or will the selfish, short-sighted — and perhaps more vocal — interests of the professional politicians be the first to be considered? It is up to every friend of education not only to voice his sentiments, tactfully and courteously, of course, but to do so immediately and in the direction in which they will be most effective.

Some of those who read these words will have expected them before this. The annual dues of a great many members of the Alumni Association have not been received to date and as a consequence operating funds are rapidly diminishing.

Every graduate who is sympathetic with the activities and ideals of the university recognizes the claim of Alma Mater to some measure of appreciation and gratitude for the opportunities that were his while on the campus. The most effective way in which to express that appreciation is through support of the program of the Alumni Association.

Alumni Calendar

Keeping abreast of everything going on in different chapters throughout the country is hard demanding work, so we're asking that if your chapter has an event planned, please send the information to the Journal so that all chapter members in your area and in others can see what fellow alumni are doing.

Plans are being made to revitalize Alumni chapters in the following Ohio areas: Columbus and Franklin County, The Cleveland Men's Club, Montgomery County, Toledo and Lucas County. Revitalization of chapters outside Ohio includes the Florida chapters of Orlando, Naples, St. Petersburg, and Miami/Fort Lauderdale and also the Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania.

New chapters will be appearing in Denver; Lexington, Kentucky; Sarasota, Florida; and in Miami and Lake/Geauga Counties in Ohio. Should you wish to join an Alumni Chapter in your area, please contact the Development/Alumni Office.

Please see the Alumni Calendar (below) for events which may be taking place in your area.

TOPCAT!

Have you ever thought of becoming a TOPCAT to a BOBCAT? In a new program to aid young alumni, the Alumni Office needs volunteers from different geographical areas throughout the country who can fulfill one, two, or even three of the following goals.

You may aid the Placement Office in job counseling by placing a fellow O.U. graduate either in your business or through your contacts. The Journal's Job Listing gives a more complete explanation of this program.

In this year of the enrollment crisis, the Alumni Office particularly needs assistance in student recruitment. The Admissions Office and the Undergraduate Alumni Association are both hoping to interest alumni in working individually to encourage high school students to choose O.U.

Finally, graduating seniors will register with the Alumni Office and be given the names of TOPCATS in the area in which they plan to live and work. If you wish to volunteer as a TOPCAT, you can make the student more familiar with the area and answer any questions he might have.

What will make the TOPCAT program successful and important is YOU. Serve as TOPCAT to a BOBCAT—contact David Scott, Director of Alumni Affairs, P.O. Drawer 869, Athens, Ohio 45701.

Placement Service

As you are probably noticing right now, this issue of the Journal includes a shorter job listing than the previous issue. We wish to stress again that the lists we publish are only a brief sample of the positions on file at the Placement Office.

Alumni are invited to make use of Ohio University's extensive placement service, not only to aid in finding a position, but also to inform O.U. graduates of any position openings that they may have in their own companies.

Many undergraduates are beginning to think already about finding a summer job. If your company has summer openings for college students, you can be a big help to these kids by listing your positions with the Placement Office.

Last Rush Elliott Weekend Ends With Banquet and Gifts

Dr. Rush Elliott, '24, whom many alumni in the professions of medicine or dentistry remember for his personal interest in their training and careers, is honored annually by Ohio University and by his friends and former students.

The 1972 Rush Elliott Lectureship Weekend, (Oct. 13-14), was a particularly meaningful occasion as, because of Dr. Elliott's projected retirement, it was the last to be held.

The tribute to Dr. Elliott brought together, as usual, an impressive representation from the medical professions for a reception held at the Elliott's home, a lecture, luncheon, football game, and formal banquet. An excellent and unprecedented attendance reflected the appreciation that participants in Ohio University's pre-medical program feel toward Dr. Elliott.

Dr. Susan A. Kline, '59, Assistant Professor in the Department of Medicine, Cornell University Medical College and Director of the Adult Cardiac Catheterization Laboratory of the New York Hospital delivered the Saturday morning lecture. She dealt with the topic of Coronary Artery Aortic Saphenous Vein By-Pass Surgery.

After the lecture she joined in a panel discussion with Dr. C. Frederick Kittle, '42, Professor of Surgery and Head of the Division of Thoracic and Cardiovascular Surgery, University of Chicago; Dr. K. Alvin Merendino, '36, Professor of Surgery and Chairman of the Department of Surgery, University of Washington, Seattle, Washington; and Dr. James Richard Patrick, '52, Professor of Pathology and Chairman of the Department of Pathology, University of Toledo Medical School. All three panel members are recipients of Ohio University's Certificate of Merit.

At the banquet given in his honor, Dr. Elliott was presented with an engraved watch and his wife Frances with an engraved silver tray and silver salt and pepper shakers. A more personal tribute to the man who has helped so many came in the form of a bound volume of letters, each letter written by a former student of Dr. Elliott and expressing appreciation for individual attention and encouragement given by Dr. Elliott. The banquet was recorded on cassette tapes, and Dr. Elliott was presented the recordings and a cassette tape player as well as promised a photograph album of the event. As a final recognition, Dr. Elliott's former students presented him with a $1,250 cash gift.

Faculty Deaths . . .

Dr. A. C. LaFollette, 69, professor of speech at Murray State University, died August 25 in Murray, Kentucky. Dr. LaFollette was a member of the faculty at Murray State the past three years and prior to that served on the faculty of Ohio University for 25 years, retiring in 1969.

While at the University, he rose from instructor of speech pathology and audiology to chairman of the department. He was named professor emeritus of speech pathology, audiology and speech science at the time of his retirement.

Retired English Professor, Harry H. Peckham, died February 27. Peckham was named professor emeritus of English upon his retirement in June of 1955, after 45 years of teaching.

During his career, he authored several biographies and co-authored four English textbooks. Peckham taught at North Carolina State and Purdue University before coming to Ohio University.

Women's Week

Whether your interests lie in needle-point or karate, "Women's Week" at Ohio University has something to offer you. The week of February 19 to 23 has been officially designated as "Women's Week" at Ohio University, and you're invited.

The program is intended to appeal not only to university women, but to women from the Athens community and to women alumni. A variety of programs are tentatively planned and include programs on Women in Art, Continuing Education for Women, a film presentation on women and their roles, Women and Finance, Woman's Health, Legal Rights for Women, Marriage & Family, Women in Performing Arts, Women in Politics, and Women and Religion.

It has been proposed that University Day, February 21, be officially set up as "Women's Awareness Day" and on February 22, Bella Abzug will be sponsored as a speaker by the Kennedy Lecture Series.

Women graduates can contribute tremendously to the success of this project by volunteering not only to attend, but also to take part in the programs. Many of the women alumni of O.U. are outstanding in professional capabilities and accomplishments, and could bring a new awareness to women undergraduates. If you are interested in taking part, please write:

march 17-25

NO LESS THAN seven running backs have been injured and lost to Ohio University's injury riddled football team, including the Bobcats' two outstanding returnees from last year, and yet the Bobcats have managed a break-even season to date.

Bill Gary, the Bobcats' top running back since his sophomore year when he was 8th nationally with 1,064 yards and 4.0 per crack, suffered a severe knee injury on his second carry in the opener with Central Michigan after reeling for 35 yards and will not return this fall.

Jim Kozlowski, who came into his own when Gary was injured last year and rushed for 629 yards, suffered a head injury and had to give up football prior to Ohio's opener.

It's been that kind of season for Bill Hess' Bobcats, but sandwiched in with adversity were some beautiful performances, like Ohio's devastating 38-22 win over Toledo which snapped their 15-game league win streak. The Bobcats ravaged Cincinnati 28-14 in another outstanding performance.

But Ohio has been down also and lost at Idaho 17-14, Kent State 37-14 and Miami 31-7, while the other Bobcat victory was over Central Michigan 26-21.

SPORTS ROUND- UP

In addition to the injuries, Ohio's defense has not improved to the extent Bill thought it would in order for his team to make a serious bid for its fifth Mid-American championship.

DESPITE BEING TEMPORARILY derailed by number one ranked Howard in the prestigious West Virginia Soccer Tournament, the Bobcat booters are going strong in their quest for a return invitation to the NCAA Tournament. After losing its season-opener to powerful Akron, Ohio has bounced back well, and in the early going had a 4-2 record.

THE CROSS COUNTRY TEAM started out strong, but injuries and inexperience have hampered the Bobcat distance crew. Bill Haviland is running well for Ohio, but after finishing an encouraging second in a six-team meet at Toledo, the harriers have dropped back-to-back home course meets for a season card of 4-3.

COACH HARRY HOUSKA'S eighth-ranked wrestling team, despite losing such standout performers as MAC champions Bruce Hosta, Bob Mason, Greg Morgan and All-American Joe Zychowics, the grapplers are confident of being in the running for an unprecedented fourth consecutive Mid-American Conference championship.

The 'Cat matmen will count on three returning lettermen, two of them All-Americans, to provide the base for another championship run. Co-captain Barry Reighard finished third in the nation at 190 pounds to nail down All-American honors in last year's NCAA Wrestling Tournament, and will team up with fellow All-American Russell Johnson (177) and co-captain Bob Tscholl (150), who also finished high in national competition, to form the bulwark of the Ohio team.

The grapplers face a rugged schedule which includes such nationally-rated teams as Michigan State, second in the NCAA last year, Michigan, Oklahoma and Southern Illinois as well as such prestigious tournaments as the Southern Open and the Sunshine Open, which Ohio has won the previous two years.

AFTER DOMINATING THE MAC for three years, Fletcher Gilder's Bobcat swimmers slipped to second last season and will be out to regain its crown.

It was Kent State that beat the Cats in the conference meet last season, and the new Flash's swimming coach is Todd Boyle, former Ohio University assistant swimming mentor. This should provide plenty of incentive for the men, but Coach Gilders doesn't know which team in the league presents the biggest threat.

"Right now we feel that we ought to be as good as last year," said Gilders. "But we really don't know what the other teams in the league have. You hear rumors, but you just don't know. Also, they've changed the order of events for the conference meet in March and what the effect will be I really can't say. Finally, Eastern and Central Michigan will be competing this season for the first time, and there is no way to assess how that will affect us."

Ohio lost only one senior through graduation, and Gilders feels that this factor plus a couple of freshmen will keep the Cats in contention.

Rick Clark, a junior, will be relied on heavily after an outstanding performance in last year's conference meet. Augmenting last season's crew will be neophyte Ray Cheran, Pennsylvania state champion in the butterfly, and Marc Wierbach, who will compete in the butterfly, freestyle and individual medley events.

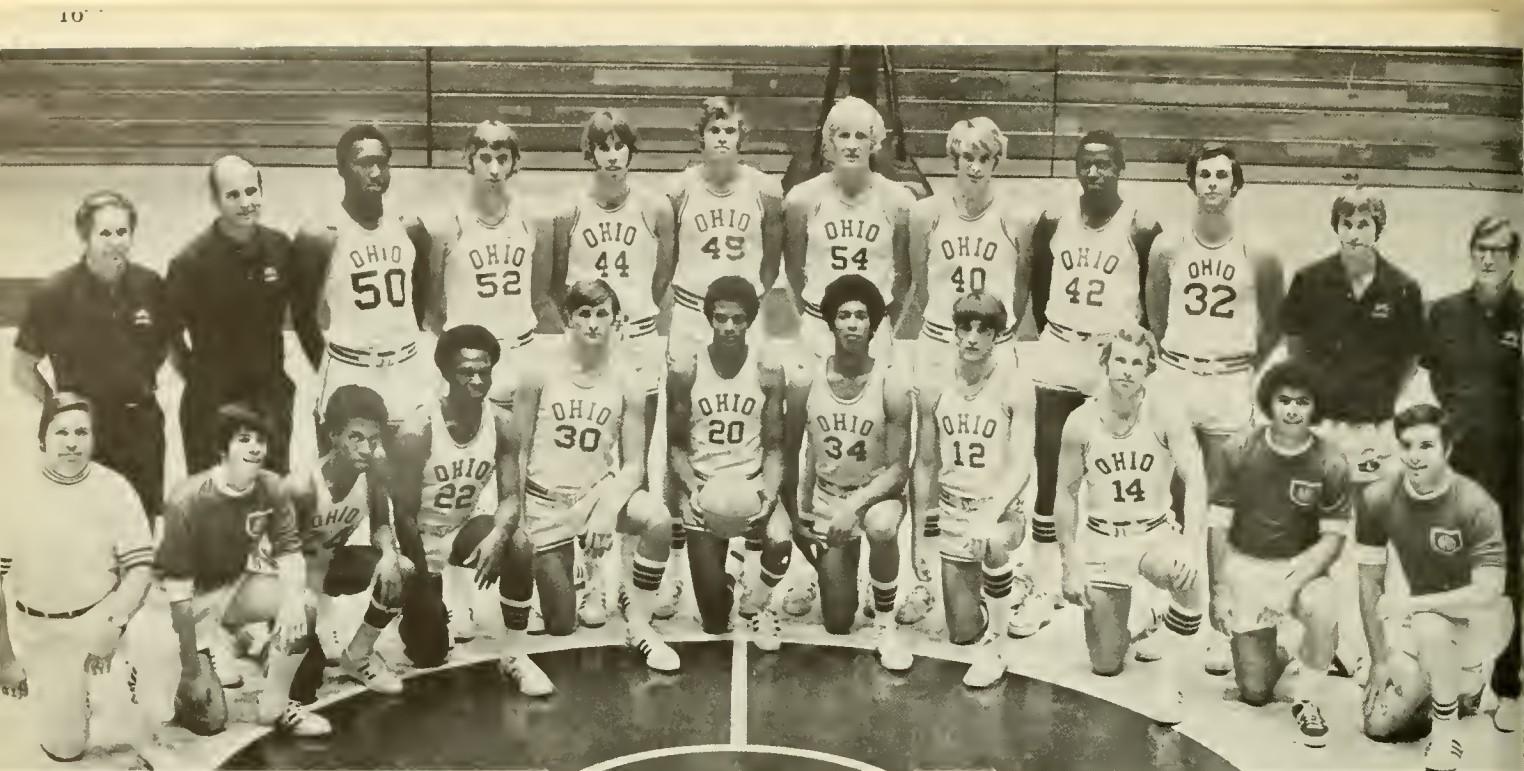

FINALLY, THOSE OF YOU who like your action hard and fast-paced will enjoy going to Bird Arena when the hockey team is in town. Coach John McComb's icers finished with a disappointing 7-17 mark last year, but the games were always exciting and with the help of 13 returning veterans should improve considerably this year.

"This season is going to be a challenge . . . We have some good talent. It's going to be a challenging, interesting season."

"We're in the process of trying to build ourselves up, but we have an excellent group of returning veterans," noted McComb. "We won't have the depth we've had in past years, but the quality is there and with dedicated effort on the part of each man, we have a chance to challenge in the Central Collegiate Hockey Association."

Goaltending is described by the coach as "an excellent situation." Competing will be senior Brian Teeple, junior Fred Cairns and sophomore Vic Lemire. "We may even use more than one goalie," explained McComb.

"This season is going to be a challenge," he continued. "We have some good talent. It's going to be a challenging, interesting season."

BOBCATS TRYING FOR MAC TITLE

Coach Jim Snyder, who last season became the winningest basketball coach in the 26-year history of the Mid-American Conference by garnering his 6th championship (all since 1960), loses 40 points of offense from that team, but is not crying the blues.

For in many ways, the players returning and the youngsters coming in have, on paper at least, outstanding potential.

There's only one major problem for Jim to hurdle. And that is finding the "point man" or ballhandling guard to replace unanimous All-MAC choice Tommy Corde, drafted 8th by the New York Knicks.

Another minor problem (but a happy one) will be finding the five best and having them on the floor.

In Jim Snyder's own words: "We have some players. How well they jell together will be the question. We'll be stronger physically, be quicker (although not great quickness), and have more experience than a year ago. We'll have good competition at all positions which should mean more depth than last season. If we work hard and continue to improve, we could have a chance at repeating for league honors. But these players must come through and live up to their potential for that to happen. If they do, it would be one of our fine teams."

Ohio tied Toledo for the league championship last year, Snyder's sixth, more than any coach in MAC history. The Bobcats look to have a chance of repeating on paper. They're potentially stronger than last year. However, Toledo has three starters back from their co-championship team; Miami also has three returning; Bowling Green figures to be improved; Western Michigan had a fine freshman squad a year ago and Kent State is difficult to assess with two junior college players, both 6-7, in to replace All-MAC performers Roger Evans and Ruben Vance.
